

THE LIBERATORS

New Album: Waitin'

Release in 2021 by record label GMR Music Group on all the major music platforms and as hard-copy CD.

The Album

The music of the band can best be described as solid rock blues grown from the roots of contemporary popular music. Several songs on the new album refer to these original roots, such as Waitin' with references to heavy electric blues; Can't Wait Another Day and Look for More has symphonic rock influences and a slight penchant for Jazz and Fusion; Clash is a tribute to punk; Money Talks with it's Motown intro; Fooling Around with reggae and ska influences and Wrong Distraction as a more traditional fingerpicking blues song.

It is a journey through the past and present of popular music. The title reflects one of the most dire periods in many musicians' lives. Due to the worldwide Covid-19 lockdown, musicians have been hit hard by the shutdown of the cultural community and the lack of live performances. After all, the most important thing for many musicians is being on stage and interacting with the audience. All the musicians in the world are currently "Waitin'", until they can go back on tour and partake in the dance that live performance embodies together with an audience.

The band's previous album, "Troubled Mind", was released just before the lockdown, in March 2020. Music is all about timing! This new album, born from the creativity arising from hardship is now out at a time when there is hope the community can open up so musicians and audiences can be together again.

Waitin' is the fifth album of the band, the second with the current line-up and is different from the other albums. It is more experimental, using samples and electronic instruments, but the clear links remain to the origins of our popular music

The Liberators released four albums for renowned companies like Polydor, Phonogram and the Belgian Munich Records. In 2020 the long awaited album "Troubled Mind" was released. In 2021 the release of the fifth album Waitin' is planned on the GMR Music Group label. More at www.theliberators.nl, agency Ron Pennings, www.picanetherlands.com and <https://www.gmrmusic.se>

On Mission

Let's Ball Tonight

The Liberators

Troubled Mind

