

THE LIBERATORS

"Southern Blues-rock" from Maastricht. The band's numerous European tours have taken them to many countries across Europe, from Spain to Norway. Tours were interspersed with the release of 6 albums on established record labels such as Polydor, Phonogram, and currently the Swedish GMR record label.

In 2020, the 5th album "Troubled Mind" was nominated for Best Blues CD in the Netherlands, ending in the top 3 of best blues albums, followed by the 2021 release of the album "Waitin'", released by the Swedish record label GMR Music. In 2024, the 6th album "A Ride Out of Town" was released. The albums have been praised by critics and have amassed over 350,000 listens on Spotify and hundreds of thousands of video views on Facebook and YouTube. In 2022, the band was also one of the finalists in the Dutch Blues Challenge, placing them among the top blues bands in the Netherlands.

The music of The Liberators can best be described as robust blues-rock music with a clear link to the roots of contemporary popular music. Various songs on the albums reference those roots, such as the title track 'Waitin'' from the album of the same name, with a link to heavy electric blues, and "Night Sky" as a more mysterious track on the album "A Ride Out of Town."

Sabbatical - Documentary

The band was followed for a year with cameras by documentary filmmaker Karin Hillebrand, resulting in the documentary "Sabbatical," broadcasted on Dutch television. The film is still available online.
